Welcome to the May Bank Holiday Unite Festival!

This fourth UNITE Festival is being held this year in Brockley/Forest Hill to celebrate unity and diversity at the same time as the traditional May Day festivities.

Acts include a local Sound System, a traditional Jamaican Quadrille from Muraldo DC, a Hindu prayer played by Tilak Patel (aged 11), some surprise guests and headlining we welcome back again the amazing Henri Gaobi, Master Drummer of Africa (from the Ivory Coast) and his drummers — who numbered over 20 on the last visit and blew us all away!

The event as always is free and full of fun for all the family including a bouncy castle, jerk chicken stall from Cummin' Up and bar. There is also a serious message with local campaigns distributing information about the value of united action in achieving social justice, and challenging racism and the growth of fascism.

This event highlights what we all love about London, and of course south east London in particular! So come along and start off summer with a hop and a bounce!
